

ART

11 of the most important London art fairs to visit in 2024

The global art world is set to descend for the capital's impressive lineup of fairs in 2024, which celebrate classical to cutting-edge art and design

Whether you're a seasoned connoisseur or a new collector, this year promises a stellar line-up of London art fairs. Maybe you're in the market for a David Hockney or a piece of vintage Buccellati jewellery. Or perhaps you're looking for an exceptional piece of 1950s furniture or to pick up a photographic print by one of the UK's most exciting emerging artists. Whatever your taste, expect a dazzling array of artists, galleries, displays and arts programmes at the capital's leading art fairs.

— The Glossary Edit —

The Best London Art Fairs To Visit

The Treasure House Fair

Royal Hospital Chelsea
26 June - 2 July

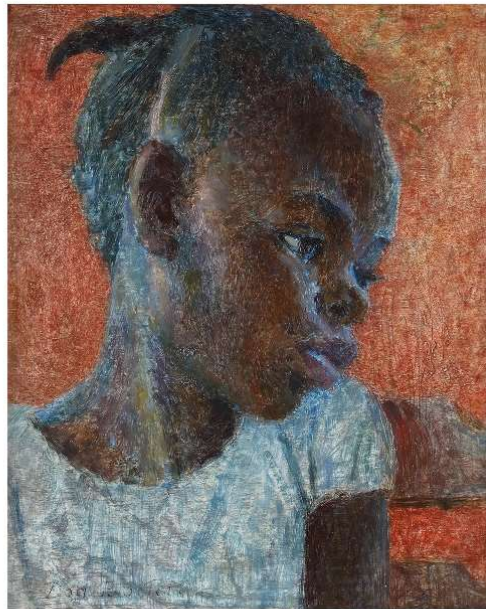

Adrian, Sassoon © Sylvain Deleu

This is the second edition of The Treasure House Fair, which returns to SW3 in June, continuing the tradition of having an annual art show at the Royal Hospital Chelsea. The multidisciplinary event – founded by Thomas Woodham-Smith and Harry Van der Hoorn, the duo behind Masterpiece – promises to be one of the best London art fairs to visit this summer, with 70 leading art and antiques galleries from around the world.

Chu Teh-Chun, Luminosité résonante I, 1988, 3812 Gallery

Philip Mould - Dod Procter (1890-1972), Davida, circa 1954

All the big-name dealers will be here (Richard Green, Godson & Coles, Osborne Samuel...) who will be joined by the likes of S.J. Shrubsole, the New York jewellery and antique silver specialist, and interiors and furniture designer Rose Uniacke, who will be unveiling her latest antique and vintage finds. Plus, there'll be ceramics, glass, metalworks, Asian art, Old Masters, and so much more in what promises to be a dazzling display from antiquity to the modern day. There is an Oyster & Champagne Bar, of course, with an outdoor space overlooking the Hospital, the perfect spot for a chilled glass of Laurent Perrier and cultured chit chat.

treasurehousefair.com